

CHD Partners has developed a series of interactive crime prevention training modules. These face-to-face training modules cover topics such as:

- Understanding local crime data
- Models of crime prevention
- Introduction to crime prevention through environmental design (CPTED)
- Conducting a community safety audit
- Developing and evaluating local crime prevention strategies

These training modules can be delivered in two-hour sessions or combined into a full day of training. The local crime prevention training modules are specifically designed for councillors, local government community safety / planning / asset management / community services personnel, local crime prevention committees and non government organisations committed to preventing crime.

Training materials are tailored to reflect the needs of the participants. Crime data, site audit images and specific local crime problems are integrated into the training delivery. This ensures that each training session boosts understanding of and capacity to respond to local crime issues.

Comments from local government personnel participating in local crime prevention training facilitated by CHD Partners reveals the benefits of this training:

- “FAB – interesting, useful, immediately applicable, great to work with a multi-disciplinary team”.
- “Very enjoyable and informative”.
- “Really relevant. Most engaging training I've done in the last 5 years. Thanks”.
- “It was great – would recommend to others”.
- “Thoroughly enjoyed – well presented and highly enlightening”.
- “Absolutely awesome. I am very keen on pursuing more training and exploring the issues practically”.
- “Excellent; comprehensive, balanced and participatory”.

Local crime prevention training can help inter-disciplinary teams across council and local government areas come together to share ideas, explore crime problems and develop joint prevention approaches.
